DAY DREAMS.

As we supposed there are plenty of people in the city who love to picture to themselves in day dreams what they would do if they should suddenly find themselves in the ranks of New York's millionaires is many years since Robu Ruff pictured to Gaffer Green what things be would do and what sights he would see if he had but a thousand a year, and the race of Robin Ruffs is not extinct, as THE EVENING World's correspondence shows.

The letters which reach us in response to our invitation are instructive to the philounpropitions. Gov. Hill will review the paraders.

Thus far representatives of organizations having an aggregate membership of 64,000 men have asked for places in the line.

Tammany Hall, the County Democracy, and Purroy Democrats have been especially united to march and will do so. No transparencies, banners or insignia will be allowed, except what has a bearing on the National or State ticket exclusively.

Arrangements have been made so that a hundred horsemen under command of Major K. Mandell will be given positions on the right of the line.

Every band in New York has been engaged for the occasion, and the Republicans who expect to parade in the afternoon will have to go out of town to engage their music if they intend to have any. sophical mind as well as interesting to the ordinary reader. They afford a curious insight into human nature. Here the sybarite is exposed who dreams only of the luxurious ease in which he would waste his days. Here we find the true philanthropist who pictures to himself the delight it would give him to bestow the greatest amount of benefit on his fellow-creatures. Here comes the young girl whose greatest joy would be to give her parents and her brothers sisters a genuine surprise. She would invent some way of getting them off to Europe, and when they returned she would have ready for them two handsomely furnished residences, one on Fifth avenu and the other at Washington Heights, Here we find the schoolgirl who would immediately send "a few hundred dollars" to Superintendent MURRAY for the benefit of the bereaved family of the brave policeman, JAMES BRENNAN, and then travel over the world. Here is a boy whose ambition would be to leave school, buy handsome clothes and a team of horses and visit every theatre in the city. And here are two candid young fellows who declare, the one, that if he had a million dollars he would marry the girl of his heart right lars he would marry the girl of his heart right away, and the other, that he should be in an insane asylum before he had spant it.

The letters are interesting reading, and we want all our friends to give us the result of their dream of a million.

MARRYING FOR TITLES.

The report that the Count Dr. Montercole. who married an American girl, Miss Vircum arried an American gir Paris, some days ago turned the couple out of doors, his other guests having been disturbed by the screams of the wife while the noble Count was indulging in his favorite

Mrs. Knor says that she does not believe Virginia would have submitted to such treatment, especially as she has friends and relatives in Europe whose protection she could have sought. We hope, for the reputation of American women, that Mrs. Knox is right, At the same time, the incident proves how much better it is for an American girl to marry an American Lord of Creation than to fling herself away on an Italian Count with waxed mustache or a brokendown English nobleman with a bankrupt constitution and an empty purse.

Magnificent idea! A million dollars? Why, yes, I can tell you: I would purchase THE WORLD (if I could), engage its present staff, ecause I think they are the smartest set of news hunters and news publishers in the news hunters and news publishers in the known world. The Evening World is sim-ply magnificent—wonderful! Then on Christmas Eve of every year I would give 50 per cent. of my net income to the Little Sisters of Charity of New York City. I would sit in my sanctum, a bigger man than Grover; would write editorials on political economy, and teach true-blue Democracy and tariff reform. those furnished by the Republican and Democratic campaign managers.

According to The World's canvass the Republican pluralities will be 75, 180 and the Democratic pluralities 86, 600, giving Cleveland the State by 11, 450. In this estimate New York City is credited with 60,000 Democratic plurality, Brooklyn with 18, 500, Queen's County with 2,000 and Richmond with 2,000. Albany is estimated to give 1,200 Democratic plurality; Chemung, 400; Greene, 100; Niagara, 100, and Westchester, 100, and many of the Republican counties are credited with an increased Republican vola.

John Jacob Astor of old said that a man worth a million was as well off as if he was rich, and another wise man said that the largest thing in the world was a million before you had it, and the smallest thing a million after you had spent it. Why not make a parallel column of what men have done with it who made or got a million? Such men have kept it or lost it in foolish speculations. Those who wish for it and never get it are, as your columns show, always ready to give it away. People who start with the idea of giving it away never make the million, and people who go through the work of making it have so high a sense of its value that they never think of giving it. Keep it! fore you had it, and the smallest thing a mill-

Were I worth a million, I would immediately call a meeting of my creditors and pay them in full, with compound interest. They would be happy. I would be happier. I sold at would then invest the balance, $950,000, in would then invest the balance, $950,000, in sound first-mortgage railroad bonds and go to bed, feeling reasonably sure of $35,000 per year, which somewhat exceeds my present income. Still, I would not change my manner of living, and I would love the same girl. I have no ambition to dress or live in better style than I always have. "Enough is as good as a feast," and, in my judgment, any man or woman who will squander more than enough to pay for the luxuries of life, or who will hoard more than enough, after they have enough, is devoid of heart and soul. Each year I would distribute from my income $90,000 among the deserving and undeserving poor—barring World reporters.
